

Static website generator

Using Calepin as a static website generator, Calepin can generate a documentation-style site directly from `.typ` sources.

The current Calepin website was built with Calepin itself, using a few helper scripts to compile and assemble the pages.

In the near term, these helpers are planned to become first-class features of the `calepin` app, so Calepin will continue as both a computational notebook and static site generator.
